- Having Realistic Expectations: I'll show you what should be considered as "Good Profit" so you don't go beating yourself up. Baby steps people!
- How to get approved for FBA: Without this approval you can't do Business, so stick around to find out how to go about this.
- I also show you all BENEFITS of this Business: You really don't want to miss out on this.

First of all, what is FBA? FBA stands for Fulfilled By Amazon. It's a simple program: When you list your products, you send them to Amazon warehouses in Europe or the United States and let Amazon do the rest for you. Amazon is going to store your products, they're going to process orders for you, they're going to send the products to the customers, they're going to handle refunds and replacements for you. For that, you're going to pay around 15 to 30% of the product cost, the cheaper the product the higher the costs are.

Let me switch to my Amazon seller central account and I'll show you what I have been doing with this. Here is my Amazon seller central account. This one is for Amazon.com in the United States, but also I have another one in Europe. Amazon requires you to have separate accounts for the United States and for Europe. European accounts include such countries as UK, France, Italy, Spain, and Germany. As you can see, we have been doing some sales here. In the past 30 days I made $8142 and 296 units sold.

Let's click to see more statistics. Here, you can see my recent payments. As you can see, I made some nice profit, some weeks more, some less, not bad huh? $14,843.. As you can see, I'm not making millions with this but this kind of money you can start working with and I think it's pretty good. I hope it will impress and inspire you to get started. I'm sure you can achieve this kind of profits as well. The most important for you now is to get started and to take action.

I know some other videos will claim they make millions per month and good for them, Bill Gates does that too, but for a regular guy or lady it's pretty good to start making even 14k per month, don't you agree.. A road of thousands miles start with the first step...First you need to get approved for FBA program, for this we just need to get approval inside the settings of your account. Then you will have inventory in the menu and you can be able to manage inventory or manage FBA inventory.

The difference is the regular inventory is for products that you are shipping yourself. I am not doing this kind of business because I don't even live in the United States so I don't need to spend time going to the post office and shipping stuff. People doing retail arbitrage might be doing it. I only work with Amazon FBA, so Amazon is going to ship everything for me, and they store the stuff that I am sending to their warehouses, and they're selling it for me.

Let's click. If you go to your FBA inventory, here you can see your storage monitor. It shows you the amount of units that you can have in Amazon warehouses. You see, I'm almost reaching my limit because I have too much stuff. I have almost 5000 units in Amazon warehouses. If you scroll down, you can see all the units we have, then you can set the prices. Then you see they have a fulfillable amount, it's what Amazon can sell for you, and un-fulfillable amount is what's damaged, and they can dispose of it for you.

Here, you can also see Amazon fees preview. For example, if you sell something for $49.99, then your fee will be around $11 which is around 20%. You can see easily what kind of money you're going to make with Amazon. The best part, Amazon is shipping all of these products within a few days, especially for Amazon Prime customers, so it's really, really easy and you don't need to worry about shipping and handling of your products. Everything is done for you automatically; all you do is just ship your products to Amazon and let them do the rest.

Let's see our next videos where I show you how to proceed to this business.
